Secretary of State: We still have a long way to go with this virus

Society will have to live with the new coronavirus for a long time to come, State Secretary for Health Andrei Baciú said on Tuesday.

The Secretary of State pointed out in an online debate that the virus posed a major challenge in both social and health terms.

“As things stand, we still have to live with this virus for a long time, so we need to take advantage of the coming weeks and months to better prepare for the second half of the year,” he said.

According to Baciú, Romania began to fight the epidemic “barefoot” as hospitals did not have adequate supplies of medicines, protective equipment and disinfectants.
